A three-day National Workshop on Situational Analysis of Children in India was organised by the National Institute of Public Cooperation and Child Development in New Delhi from 14-16 March, 1989. While the final Report is yet to be received by the Government, some important draft recommendations of the workshop are given in the enclosed Statement (See below).

(b) It is proposed to expand the Integrated Child Development Services Programme (ICDS) in a phased manner, in addition to other measures aimed at child development.

(c) Government have taken up the following programmes to tackle childhood problems relating to these nutritional deficiencies :

(i) The National Programme for prevention of visual impairment and control of blindness in India aims to provide a masive oral dose of Vitamin 'A' of two lakh International Units to children of 1-5 years of age, once in six months.

(ii) The Prophylaxis Programme against National Anaemia among mothers and children provides Iron and Folic Acid supplements for a period of 100 days as a preventive measure.

(iii) Under the Integrated Child Development Services Scheme and other supplementary nutrition programmes, children in the age group of 0-6 years and expectant and nursing mothers, are being provided supplementary nutrition.

Apart from these measures, nutrition and health education is also being provided to pregnant women, nursing mothers and the community, through ICDS functionaries and medical and para-medical workers.

(d) A computerised monitoring system has been set up to collect and use the data from the ICDS projects to improve performance. Computer facilities are also being made available to the State Governments.

Statement

The draft recommendations

(i) Child nutrition is dspendent on maternal nutritional status and hence the health and nutritional services to expectant and the nursing mothers should include health and nutrition education as an important component.

(ii) Diarrhoeal diseases being widely prevelant among children, the ORT strategy should be a part of the package of services provided to children to prevent deaths due to dehydration.

(iii) In order to improve the outreach of services, 'at risk' approach should be employed in the delivery of services.

(iv) Infants and pre-school children, being the most vulnerable, should be the focus of attention of programmes like supplementary nutrition, administration of Vitamin A, Iron and Folic acid distribution and Immunisation.

(v) Since a number of departments are involved in health and nutrition intervention programmes for mother and child, an inter-sectoral and coordinated approach should be built in to the monitoring system.
